

Sanya A. Springfield, PhD

Director
Center to Reduce Cancer Health Disparities
NCI Shady Grove

What I do now...

As the Director of the NCI's Center to Reduce Cancer Health Disparities, I lead the efforts to establish and grow programs that promote the research education and training of diverse populations, as well as programs that help address cancer health disparities.

Quote on diversity...

I'm committed to exploring the whole gamut of cancer health disparities and believe it is not only important to research disparities, but it is equally critical to diversify the biomedical workforce.

Places I trained/worked...

- Howard University
- Robert Wood Johnson School of Medicine
- City College of New York
- National Science Foundation
- NIH/NCI

My favorite traditions/holidays...

- I am the third African-American neuroscientist in the world.

